A man was walking through the hall at a middle school when he noticed a fellow substitute teacher standing forlornly with his forehead against a locker.

“How did you get yourself into this?” the substitute teacher whispered, over and over.

Knowing the teacher had been assigned a difficult class, the man asked, “Are you all right?”

The teacher replied, “I’ll be fine as soon as I get the kid out of his locker.”

Mystery writer Carol Higgins Clark liked to share the excellent advice her mother, Mary Higgins Clark, also a mystery writer, once gave her: “If someone’s mean to you, make them a victim in your next book.”

Three mice walked into a bar.

The first mouse said, “When I see a mousetrap, I lie on my back and set it off with my foot.

When the bar comes down, I catch it with my teeth, bench-press it 20 times to work up an appetite and make off with the cheese.”

The second mouse responded, “Yeah, well, when I see poison, I collect as much as I can, take it home and grind it into a powder.

Then I mix it into my coffee so I can get a good buzz for the rest of the day.”

The third mouse suddenly looked at his watch and said, “Gotta go. I have a date with the cat.”

A wife called her husband at work.

“Have you ever experienced piercing pain all over your body?

As if somebody had a voodoo doll of you and was sticking pins into it?”

“Um... no, not really,” he replied, confused.

“Interesting,” she said. “What about now?”

TEACHER: Why are you late?

STUDENT: Class started before I got here.

TEACHER: John, why are you doing your math multiplication on the floor?

JOHN: You told me to do it without using tables.

TEACHER: Glenn, how do you spell 'crocodile?'

GLENN: K-R-O-K-O-D-I-A-L.'

TEACHER: No, that's wrong

GLENN: Maybe it is wrong, but you asked me how I spell it.

TEACHER: Donald, what is the chemical formula for water?

DONALD: H I J K L M N O.

TEACHER: What are you talking about?

DONALD: Yesterday you said it's H to O.

When a store cashier handed a man his change, one coin stood out.

“Look at that. You rarely get one of these old wheat pennies nowadays, the man said, tapping the sheaf-of-wheat design.

The man handed the cashier the penny.

Turning it over and over in her hand she said, “You know, I always thought they were made of copper.”

A person tacked up a flyer on the street that proclaimed, “Take what you need.”

At the bottom were tear-off strips with the words Passion, Strength, Love, Patience, Cookies, Courage, and so forth.

The first strips taken were Cookies and Love.

A biology teacher asked her class whether anyone knew what the word Retrovirus meant.

One kid raised his hand and said, “Retrovirus, or more commonly known as ... disco fever

A while back, a man's boss discovered the motivational quote "Only in the dictionary does success come before work."

The boss ordered a large banner for their work area with his "improved" version of the quote.

The banner which the man can see from his desk, reads:

"Only in the dictionary does success come before hard work."

TEACHER: Winnie, name one important thing we have today that we didn't have ten years ago.

WINNIE: Me!

TEACHER: Glen, why do you always get so dirty?

GLENN: Well, I'm a lot closer to the ground than you are.

TEACHER: George Washington not only chopped down his father's cherry tree, but also admitted it. Now, Louie, do you know why his father didn't punish him?

LOUIS: Because George still had the axe in his hand!

TEACHER: Now, Simon, tell me frankly, do you say prayers before eating?

SIMON: No sir, I don't have to, my Mum is a good cook.

A Professor received this e-mail from a prospective student prior to the start of the semester: "Dear Professor, I won't be able to come to any of your classes or meet for any of the tests.

Is this a problem?"

Sports Analysts get paid to talk, not necessarily to make sense:

1. "I had a feeling today that Venus Williams would either win or lose."

(Tennis commentator, Martina Navratilova)

2. "There's nothing wrong with the car except that it's on fire."

(Racing commentator, Murray Walker)

3. "The wind is rushing from the players rear."

(Golf announcer, Steve Melnyk)

4. "We haven't had any more rain since it stopped raining."

(Tennis commentator, Harry Carpenter)

While tallying up a customer's groceries, a clerk sang along with the music playing over the PA system.

Suddenly the customer, a sweet elderly woman, asked, "What did you do with the money?"

"What money?" the clerk asked.

"The money your parents gave you for singing lessons."

A Pennsylvania man plagued by opossums in his yard set fire to a pile of leaves, hoping to scare off the marsupials.

We don't know whether it worked, but he did succeed in nearly burning down his home, causing $50,000 worth of damage.

TEACHER: Clyde, your composition on 'My Dog' is exactly the same as your brother's. Did you copy his?

CLYDE : No, sir. It's the same dog.

TEACHER: Harold, what do you call a person who keeps on talking when people are no longer interested?

HAROLD: A teacher.

Due to current economic conditions the light at the end of the tunnel has been turned off.

Q. What did the hot dog say when his friend passed him in the race?

A. Wow, I relish the fact that you've mustard the strength to ketchup to me.

A man was arrested after Florida police mistook the glaze on his Krispy Kreme doughnut for crystal meth.

His sweet revenge: a $37,000 settlement.

Q. How do you keep intruders out of a castle made of cheese?

A. Moatzarella.

A Norwegian man hired a friend to knock off a potential lover who didn't seem to share the man's ardor.

But then the would-be hit man got cold feet, so his patron sued him for entering into a contract under false pretenses.

The courts saw different legal issues.

They found the first man guilty of attempted conspiracy to commit murder and sentenced him to two years in prison.

The "hit man" got a hit of his own--a $1,200 fine.

An Indiana hotel asked a guest to write an online review, so she did: about the whiff of sewage in the room, the nonworking air conditioner, and the low water pressure.

Oh, and the hairs on the bed. "I wasn't crazy about that either," she told rtv6.com.

The hotel, it turns out, says it can charge customers $350 for negative reviews.

The Indiana Attorney General wasn't crazy about that.

He says the policy is "unfair, abusive, and deceptive" and is suing the hotel.

I went to a seafood restaurant and slipped.

I pulled a mussel.

You know what's hard to beat for breakfast?

A boiled egg.

The price of candy at the movie theater is ridiculous.

They're always raisinet!
